World Heritage Site of Machu Pichhu

The Lost City of Machu Pichhu is situated around 2,430 meters above the sea level in the Urubamba Valley mountain ridge, Peru, was declared as the World Heritage Site since 1983.

Urumbamba Valley Mountain Ridge

The site, also called "Aoropolis", is a clear manifestation of the sophisticated architecture, dividing the urban and the agricultural areas.

Around 175 skeletons were excavated from the site. After a proper research and examination of these human remains, it was found out that the people of Machu Pichhu led quite a peaceful and healthy life. Eventually, it was also affirmed that this famous heritage site was mysteriously confined during the Spanish invasion.
